

Sisters and Brothers,

In these troubling times when we must suspend our meetings and most activities, let us not forget our obligations to our Order, our selves and our communities. "Let us not be weary in well-doing." We must meet our members and communities needs and do what we can for them.

Pam and I set forth some goals for this year to help our home communities. It is more important now to see them carried out.

"Our Lord has promised to uphold us by the right hand of his power." Prayer is the strongest weapon we have at our disposal. The obligation all Master Masons took says: "In your devotion to Deity, remember your Brother's well fare as your own." This applies even more to us. One of the best ways to do this is to maintain a sickness or distress report. We may not be able to meet, but. We can still check on each other. If you need anything, let your sisters and brothers know. In our prayers, let us not forget our brothers and sisters here and abroad. The Master's admonition at the close of Lodge states: 'remember that around this alter you have promised to relieve every distressed brother(sister) who should need our assistance, so good unto all, recommend it more, especially to the household of the faithful. Be ye all of one mind, go in peace and may the God of love and peace delight to dwell with you and bless you.'

Sincerely and Fraternally,
